19 Letâ€™s go into the field. Lifeâ€™s all around. Plants, insects, spiders, birds, mammals, and more In the sky above and the soil underground. 20 Letâ€™s go into the garden. Itâ€™s so amazing to me. With our help these plants will grow strong And give us food to eat, And give us a nice tasty treat. 25 Letâ€™s go into the field.

At this time, you can transplant plants either into small individual containers with more space per plant or, if temperatures allow, directly into the garden. Most garden varieties transplant well without showing signs of stress; however, some do not tolerate the transplanting process well, and you should sow them directly in the garden.
