I finished making this dress in one day. It's short so it fits a little different than I expected, but it is really cute! And very easy. The most confusing part for me was figuring out which way to cut the extra pieces (neck panels, twist bands & front/back panels) and then which end was top and bottom on the front and back panels.

All I wanted was to compile the best report there was. I kept testing and tweaking – throwing out the useless feminization tips, and working on the good ones – until, before I knew it, I had developed – a program that would guarantee to help someone to achieve the feminine appearance one could only dreamed about and to be the woman that one has always wanted to be.

An adorable origami dress card from How About Orange has been floating around Pinterest for a few weeks. I thought it was so much fun that I made a variation of it for this week’s make-and-take at MLO. I cut 5 inch squares from thin scrapbook paper – a lot of scrapbook papers are too thick for origami, so make sure you find something not much thicker than copy paper.

I made this thing. It’s pretty cool. It’s a convertible dress that’s basically a circle and two straps, so it’s really easy, inexpensive, and crazy versatile. It’s been around forever and everyone seems to love it (in fact, part of the reason I’m posting this is to answer some questions for people I’ve run into), and I can hardly believe how close I came to not making it at all.
